

The Tragedy of Hamlet

Enter King and Polonius.

King. Loue: his affections doe not that way tend, Nor what he spake, though it lackt forme a little,
Was not like madnes; there's something in his soule Ore which his melancholy sits on brood,
And I doe doubt, the hatch and the disclose
Will be some danger; which for to preuent, I haue in quick determination
Thus set downe: he shall with speed to England,
For the demaund of our neglected tribute, Haply the seas, and countries different,
With variable obiects, shall expell
This something fetled matter in his hart, Whereon his braines still beating Puts him thus from fashion of himselfe.
What thinke you on't?

Pol. It shall doe well.

But yet doe I belecue the origen and comencement of it Sprung from neglected loue: how now Ophelia?
You neede not tell vs what Lord Hamlet said,
We heard it all: my Lord, doe as you please,
But if you hold it fit, after the play.
Let his Queene-mother all alone intreate him
To show his griefe, let her be round with him,
And Ile be plac'd (to please you) in the eare
Of all their conference: if she find him not,
To England send him: or confine him where Your wisdoms best shall thinke.

King. It shall be so, Madnes in great ones must not vnmatcht goe. Exeunt.

Enter Hamlet, and three of the Players.

Ham. Speake the speech I pray you as I pronounc'd it to you, trip-pingly on the tongue, but if you mouth it as many of our Players do, I had as liue the to wne cryer spoke my lines, nor doe not saw the aire too much with your hand thus, but vse all gently, for in the very torrent tempest, and as I may say, whirlwind of your passion, you must acquire and beget a temperance, that may giue it smoothnesse, Or it offends me to the soule, to heare a robustious perwig-pated fellow tere

Prince of Denmarke.

tere a passion to totters, to very rags, to spleet the eares of the ground lings, who for the most part are capable of nothing but inexplicable dumbe shewes, and noyse: I would haue such a fellow whipt for oredooing Termagant, it out Herods Herod, pray you auoyde it.

Play. I warrant your honour.

Ham. Be not too tame neither, but let your owne discretion bee your tutor, sute the action to the word, the word to the action, with this speciall obseruance, that you ore-stepe not the modesty of nature: For any thing so ore-dooe, is from the purpose of playing, whose end both at the first, and now, was and is, to hold as twere the Mirrour vp to nature, to shew vertue her feature, scorne her own Image, and the very age and body of the time his forme and preasure.
Now this ouer-done, or come trady off, though it makes the vnskilfull laugh, cannot but make the iudicious greene, the censure of which one, must in your allowance ore-weigh a whole Theater of others. O there bee Players that I haue seene play, and heard others prayd, and that highly, not to speake it prophanely, that neither hauing th'accent of Christians, nor the gate of Christian, Pagan, nor man, haue so strutted and bellowed, that I haue thought some of Natures Iournemen had made men, and not made them well, they imitated humanity so abominably.

Play. I hope we haue reform'd that indifferently with vs.

Ha. O reforme it altogether, and let those that play your clownes speake no more then is set downe for them, for there be of them that will themfelues laugh, to set on some quantity of barraine spectators to laugh to, though in the meane time, some necessary question of the play be then to be considered: that's villanous, and shewes a most pittifull ambition in the soole that vses it: goe make you ready. How now my Lord, will the King heare this peece of worke?

Enter Polonius, Gyldesterne, and Rosencrans.

Pol. And the Queene to, and that presently.

Ham. Bid the Plaiers make hast. Wil you two help to hasten them.

Ros. I my Lord Exeunt those two.

Ham. What how, Horatio.

Enter Horatio.

Hora. Heere sweete Lord, at your seruice.

Ham. Horatio, thou art een as iust a man

As ere my conuerfation copt withall.

Hora. O my deere Lord.

Ham. Nay
